Response Needed to Remain on Mailing List

- Please help us update our mailing list and improve RTD UPDATES. Returning the survey will keep your name on our mailing list.
- Also, let us know if you are interested in receiving information about a new report, Agricultural Resources and Environmental Indicators.

RTD UPDATES, a semimonthly series, features data relating to agricultural resources, the environment, food safety, and technology. UPDATES reports recent data from surveys of farm operators and others knowledgeable about changing agricultural resource conditions. UPDATES contain only minimal interpretation or analysis. A list of UPDATES published to date is attached. When you return the survey form, let us know if you would like any back issues.

Please note that you must return the survey by July 30, 1994 if you want to continue to receive UPDATES. After that date we will delete your name from the mailing list.

RTD will publish a new report Agricultural Resources and Environmental Indicators (AREI) in late summer. AREI will consolidate the information previously published in the four Agricultural Resources Situation and Outlook Reports. AREI will provide a broad look at the resource, environment, and technology issues affecting U.S. agriculture. Specifically, it will cover current trends in land and water use; summarize commercial input use in the agricultural sector; assess the condition of natural resources used in the sector; report on changes in production practices; and describe and assess public policies that affect conservation and environmental quality in agriculture. By combining data and information into one report, we can reduce costs while improving information and data quality, which are important factors in USDA's effort to improve government services. RTD UPDATES will supplement data reported in AREI.

If you would like to receive more information about the new AREI report, please indicate on the survey form.
